Dear Parents / carers,

You will be aware that last Thursday afternoon (2nd July) the Government published their lengthy guidance on schools fully reopening for all pupils in September. I am sure you are anxious to know what this will mean for your child's return to school.

Given there is only 2 ½ weeks remaining of this term, this has left schools with very limited times to undertake all the detailed planning and decision making that is required to enable us to welcome all students back safely next term. I have spent the majority of the last 72 hours making sense of the guidance and working out exactly how we will do all that is required of us at Carwarden to welcome every student back.

I have developed comprehensive proposals for arrangements in September which were sent to all staff yesterday. I am required to consult on these plans with the staff team, which I will be doing on Wednesday of this week. Once this consultation process is completed I will be writing to you all with all the details you need to prepare for September.

In the meantime, please see below the link to Government advice for parents:
